Arrested for Murderous Assault and Robbery.

Victim was Beaten Unconscious and Left Laying on the Railroad.

Constable Geo. B. McClintic, of Johnsonburg, sent Chief Frank Mundy, some time ago, a warrant for the arrest of Endis Cline, charged with assult and robbery, committed at Johnsonburg on May 11th. Cline turned up in Emporium Tuesday afternoon when he was locked up. Officer McClintic came to Emporium this morning and took the man to Elk county to answer the charge. Officer McClintic tells us the story: On May 11th Cline and a "pal" met a Glen Hazel liveryman named J. W. Blanden and enticed him to the B. R. & P. R. R. track near Sage's machine shop, where they assulted and robbed the man of his watch and some money, leaving him laying on the track unconscious, possibly thinking a train would run over him. Regaining consciousness he crawled to the machine shop, arousing the watchman by his cries, who took him to a doctor. He was frightfully bruised. What Cline needs is about twelve or fifteen years "down the river." He is a bad customer.

Mr. D. C. Hayes Worse.

Mr. D. C. Hayes, who went to Buffalo for treatment, is reported to be worse and Mrs. Hayes went to Buffalo on Tuesday to see him. We hope the report is not correct and that he will get relief.

Mrs. Hayes and Miss Christie Mac Donald returned from Buffalo last evening and report Mr. Hayes' condition improved. He is confined to his bed in the hospital, where he will remain for months before he can recover.

AN EVENTFUL WEEK.

Big Fire.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The big fire at Coney Island early on Sunday morning destroyed property valued at $1,500,000 and the district burned over is equal to 35 acres. The causualities are two mortally injured, nine seriously hurt and two missing. Two thousand people are homeless and 300 firms are out of business. It is suspected that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Fourth Trial.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 29.—The fourth trial of Caleb Powers former secretary of state, charged with killing William Gobel seven years ago, was called at a special term of Scott county circuit court before Judge James Robbins at 10 o'clock this morning.

Big Hotel Destroyed.

LONG BEACH, LONG ISLAND, July 29. As a result of a spectacular fire at this place this morning the Long Beach hotel, two cottages, a church, the railroad station, casino and grandstand were destroyed.

Two persons were injured and there were many thrilling escapes among the six hundred sleeping guests who were routed from their rooms at the hotel. Thousands of dollars were lost by the sleeping guests, many of whom fled in their night clothes. Several histerical women appeared at the windows, preparing to leap, when Senator McCarren and others rushed to the aid of the frightened women and dragged them to a place of safety.

Haywood Acquitted.

BOIS, IDAHO, July 29.—The acquittal of Wm. D. Haywood, following his remarkable trial, has held the attention of the entire country. Notwithstanding the fact that the prosecuting attorneys insist that Moyer and Pettibone be brought to trial, unless the opinion of the vast majority of the people is incorrect, these men will never be prosecuted on the same charge as was Haywood.

The Haywood trial has cost the state of Idaho $240,000 and the taxpayers are incensed that such a sum should have been authorized since the trial proved such a fiasco.

Haywoood spent this morning at the bed-side of his feebled mother. He will at once resume his duties as secretary of the Western Federation of Miners.

Many Killed in Tenement House Fire.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The six-story tenement building at 222 Chrystie street was destroyed by fire this morning and a score of inmates burned. Thirty persons were seriously injured many of whom will die. Eighteen charred bodies have been taken from the ruins and it is feared there are other bodies in the ruins. Most of the dead are women and children. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

This tenement is long known to have been a hot bed of Italian murderers and Black Hand tragedies and had a criminal record nor equaled by any other house in New York. The fire was one of the worst that the New York fire department has had to battle with for years.

PLEADS GUILTY.

Ora O'Dell, who murdered his wife July 18th, was given a hearing on Tuesday and pleaded guilty to the charge of murder. Now comes the trial, which possibly will be during the month of Sept. or October.

Warner House Rented.

Mr. W. G. Gilbert, who has conducted the New Warner so successfully since he purchased the valuable property from Mr. Jos. L. Wheeler, has decided to retire from the management and relieve his wife, whose health is not the best. The New Warner has been leased to Mr. Wm. Schutte, of Pittsburg, which included the purchase of furniture and stock. Consideration $17.000. Mr. Schutte takes possession Aug. 8th. The New Warner is one of the best Hotels on the line of the P. & E. and we hope and expect the good name may continue. Our people will be pleased to learn that Mr. aud Mrs. Gilbert will make their home in Emporium.

LEHIGH TO OPEN STATE CAMPAIGN

Birthplace of Republican Nominee for State Treasurer John O. Sheatz Will Fire First Guns for the Fall Fight in Pennsylvania.

ALLENTOWN, PA., July 27.—Much to the regret of the Republicans of Lehigh county, United States Senator Philander C. Knox has found it impossible to accept the invitation to attend the county meeting at Emaus, on Saturday, August 31, but it is certain that a big crowd will be there just the same to greet Representative John O. Sheatz, the Republican nominee for State Treasurer, whose campaign will be formerly opened upon that occassion.

Representative Sheatz is a son of Lehigh having been born at Mechanicsville, four miles from this city, and no Pennsylvania German who ever run for a State office has been more popular in his native county than he. Many old time Democrats, who were associates of his father, and who knew Representative Sheatz as a boy working in his father's blacksmith shop, will vote for him and it is predicted that he will carry Lehigh county.

Democratic leaders will admit that Representative Sheats is a political stone wall that it is impossible to penetrate, and the local party managers of the Democrats are fearful that Sheatz's popularity will endanger the election of their county ticket, which has very small chance considering the help that the Sheatz tidal wave will give the nominees for the Republican ticket.

The Democratic candidates for District Attorney, Sheriff, Recorded of Deeds and Director of the Poor are all members of the Democrotic county crowd that was downed in every fall election for the past four or five years and there seems to be a determination among the voters to break up the Democratic machine and to keep it in retirement.

The members of the Republican county ticket have already begun an active canvass of the county and all are confident of success.

Great Van Amburg Shows.

No tented amusement enterprise on earth has met with such continuous praise and applause as has the Great Van Amburg Shows. An ovation greets this clean and beautiful organization at every point in its annual tour.

From the cold waters of Hudson Bay to the Rio Grande and Pacific shores the name of VanAmburg is a house hold word and the coming of the Great Shows that bear his name is greeted always with a hearty welcome.

From the gensis of the show until its present colossal perfection there has not been a solitary season in which it has not led its fellows in the multipicity and general excellence of its attractions and now it towers above and dwarts all other tented exhibitions in comparative insignificance, and this season it presents such an opulence of sterling and meritorious attractions as to entitle it to be designated as a vast Amusement Golconda whose wondrous wealth of entertainment is unlimited and unmeasurable. The Van Amburg Show has always been the best and biggest, always in the van, always prolific in leading and sensational features and always fully equipped with the finest stable of horses and the most skillful and finished bareback riders, gymnasts and acrobats in the profession. The show has a large, well-ordered and well selected menagerie, containing living, vigorous specimens of all that is strange, rare and curious within the range of natural history, and this Royal Roman Hippodrome is a realistic reproduction of that of the days of the Imperial Caesar.

It may be said, however, that to these always prominent and desirable attractions has been added, for the current season, many features so stupendous in magnitude, so overpowerink in unprecedented grandeur and impressiveness, and so enormous in the expense necessary to this production, that the features mentioned, grand and wonderful as they are, can at best play but a secondary part.

Returns From Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. McNarney returned on Monday night from a two weeks' vacation in Michigan, taking the delightful lake route as far as Detroit. District Attorney, J. P. McNarney attended the Supreme Tent convention of the K. O. T. M., as one of the Pennsylvania delegates. They enjoyed the trip hugely. Joe and Wilfred McNarney got up bright and early Monday morning and met their parents at Buffalo, upon the arrival of the boat, and took them down to Niagara Falls to see the sights.

THOU SHALT NOT STEAL

Neither Shalt Thou Bear False Witness.

DANIELS COME TO JUDGMENT

Who Will Promulgate a Heretofore Apparently Unknown to Them Commandment—But as Mens' Works do Follow Them, They Will Have Good and Sufficient Reasons to Clean up Their Own Records Before They Proceed to Criticise, Judge and Condemn Others.

Bellefonte Gazette.

The following is clipped from a paper giving a report of a meeting of the Democratic State Committee, held at Harrisburg, July 17, 1907:

"At the suggestion of S. W. Brennan, of Allegheny, the chairman will fix a day in August when in every town in the state a meeting will be held at which there will be addresses by speakers on the text "Thou shalt not steal" with reference to the new Capitol disclosures."

This is a new departure for the modern saints of democracy. It would indicate that they had just become acquainted with the Eighth Commandment. When the democrats start out as evangelists, to condemn every one but themselves, and assert their own purity and political self righteousness, they should not forget that other commandment: "Neither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbor," and also that there is another bibical injunction, proclaimed by Him who spoke as one having authority when on earth, which is, "Judge not that ye be not judged."

Have our democratic friends, who as a party have not changed their ways, forgotten when Howell Cobb, Secretary of the Treasury, and John Buchanan Floyd, Secretary of War under the administration of James Buchanan, how they plotted treason against the government and depleted the treasury of the United States of $850,000, robbed the arsenals of their arms and munitions of war, shipped them into the South, and scattered the army and what little navy we had to the four corners of the earth and then joined in the open rebellion against the government and tried to destroy it?

Have these modern saints forgotten the palmy days of the Canal Commission in this State, when everything was controlled by the democratic party, and the real estate of the farmer and mechanic taxed for state purposes, and the political atmosphere was rank with the alleged graft in the state administration and that of the public works?

Have they forgotten the remarkable exposure of Tammany Hall, New York, under the regime of Boss Tweed, a democratic organization that controlled the city and state, and was also shown to be an organization that fattened and grew rich upon graft, public plunder and organized theft?

Have our democratic saints ever been known to shout in the case of Cobb and Floyd and that of Tammany Hall, "Thou shalt not steal?" Oh, no! We presume at that time they were ignorant of the Eighth Commandment. On the contrary, they have always justified and defended the actions of Cobb and Floyd and Tammany Hall, and have never apologized for such notorious actions perpetrated by democratic leaders and democratic organizations.

Surely, when the democratic evangelists bombard every town in the state in the midst of dog days, they should not overlook the latter injunction, "Judge not, that ye be judged," and the commandment, "Bear not false witness against thy neighbor."

The republican party and those in authority are neither defending nor apologizing for the Hustons and Sandersons, or any one else who apparently conspired to defraud the state. A Republican Legislature appointed a commission to investigate the frauds and made ample appropriation to enable the committee to ferrit the wrong and guilty parties. A Republican Governor is pledged to leave "no guilty man escape," and he keeps his pledges. No prominent or influential republican, who is efficient and active in the organization or who aids in shaping its policies, has thus far been tainted with graft. The Hustons and Sandersons were not active republicans, but a few years ago were proclaiming their self-political righteousness and doing what they could to aid the "Thou shalt not Steal" democrats into power.

Our candidate for state treasurer, Hon. John O. Sheatz, is a most capable, honest and upright man. He has been tried in public life and has been in the limelight, and has stood the test with honor and integrity. No republican should allow himself to be duped or deceived into voting the democratic ticket by the democratic slogan: "Thou shalt not steal," and thus on the eve of a presidential election do that which would be a reflection upon President Roosevelt's administration, and would be hearlded as the repudiation of the candidacy of Senator Knox as Pennsylvania's choice for the presidency.

"Let him that is without sin first cast the stone."

How Others See Emporium.

Port Allegany Reporter.

"The CAMERON COUNTY PRESS discourses eratically and condemnatory of the wretch who killed his wife at Emporium while under the influence of Cameron county liquor, but it is closed up like unto a clam relative to the inhuman cuss who sold the wretch that which he knew would turn him into a brute, a situation that was well known to every one there, as the fellow had developed murderous instincts for thirteen years when drinking. They tell me that he was quite a decent fellow in former years and that even during the past year, though his intellect and disposition were blunted by intermittent dissipation, when not drinking developed some good qualities.  "Whiskey made a pretty heavy record in Emporium last week. Big fire early Sunday morning. Two men burned to death on that date. One woman shot to death on Thursday; one man suicided, or attempted it; two children orphaned, two homes broken up and a dozen others desolated; the county up against a three thousand dollar expense in a murder case and innumerable misdemeanors that are a common occurrence there. Seventeen license places to a population of two thousand. The wonder is that there aren't more murders and more expense.  "The Independent, a a newspaper at Emporium says of the license situation there in connection with the O'Dell murder: "The temptation to sell is so great that unscrupulous men constantly violate the law." That is the result of license lunacy as it exists in Emporium. Rent is high and license is high in that town, and without the citizenry drunk to excess, there isn't profit enough to keep the hell-holes that exist there in operation. A starving liquor license man is always an unscrupulous man. Dare the news of Emporium insist that the license granted therein be cut down to four and that the sale be curtailed? This paper thinks not For thirty years this paper has been against an excess of liquor license in Port Allegany and against violation of the liquor laws. Until there is an excess of licenses the law not likely to be violated. Will the people of Emporium, after the terrible experiences of last week, arise in their might and control the liquor business there or will they allow it to continue until more desperate tragedies are enacted?"

This is rather tough on Emporium, although the major part of Brother Layman's criticism is just. The PRESS has for years openly and constantly advocated the reduction of licenses in this county. At the last license court, held in December 1906, Judges Green, McDonald and LaBar refused the application of six or seven licenses and after Judge Hall took his seat efforts were made to set aside the former refusals, but the Court would not listen. The murder trial will no doubt bring out many facts of interest to the public. Both the PRESS and Independent have repeatedly called attention to the rank violation of the license law. Things should be a little different yet. We all hope.

Ohio for Taft.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 30.—The candidacy of William H. Taft, Secretary of War, for the Republican nomination for President, was indorsed by the Republican State Committee to-day by a vote of 15 to 6. The indorsement carried with it a decloration that the Republicans of Ohio are opposed to the elimination from public life of Senators Foraker and Dick.

Although beaten by a decisive vote in all preliminary contests, the adherents of Senator Foraker in the committee refused to accept the olive branch extended by the Taft supporters and when the resolution, as amended, was finally adopted, no effort was made to make the action of the committee unanimous."

Senator Foraker is a fighter, an able man, popular all over the country and would have made an able president. He will not sulk in the camp, but will be found in the front rank, working for the election of a Republican President.

Anti-Typhoid Inoculation.

Gen. Lord Kitchener is said to be favorably impressed with the value of anti-typhoid inoculation in the British army. The evidence as to its effectiveness in checking enteric fever, as presented in the Journal of the Royal Army Medical Corps is, indeed, very strong. The method of inoculation, which was advocated in 1897 by Sir A. E. Wright, was first tested on a large scale in India and Egypt, with encouraging results. It was also shown that during an epidemic at Maidstone not one of the 84 nurses and attendants who had been inoculated was attacked, whereas there were 16 cases of typhoid among 120 nurses who had not been inoculated. The experiments are being continued in India, to which country 15,000 doses of the inoculating material have, up to date, been sent. It has been found that a second inoculation increases the degree of immunity. Lieut. Luxmoore reports that during the Meerut epidemic in the Seventeenth Lancers, 61 of the 63 cases occurred in soldiers who had not been inoculated, the other two being men who refused to submit to a second operation. The Lancet holds that inoculation for typhoid fever must hereafter be held as neecssary for the protection of soldiers as vaccination is against smallpox. The observations made during the Meerut epidemic also emphasize the fact that sanitarians have fixed their attention too much on water as a source of infection. More recently, the fatal activity of flies has received some notice; but there is a third way in which the germs are scattered broadcast—by means of dust—which has heretofore been insufficiently studied.

Comment is often made on the supremacy of the Jewish element in the theatrical field. Miss Ellen Terry puts her finger on the secret of it in her comments on Disraeli. She expresses a liking for his novels because of their color, their pageantry, and then says: "Disraeli was a heaven-born artist, who, like so many of his race on the stage, in music and elsewhere, seems to have an unerring instinct for the things which the gentile only acquires by labor and training." In other words it is not the commercial sense alone, as so many assume, that makes Jews succeed in this field, but the instinct she speaks of for what will please.

Some medical expert announces every few months that Americans eat too much. Such a man said in a lecture before a medical school class the other day that there is as much nourishment in a slice of bread and butter as in three slices of lean beef, or in an egg and a half, or in 16 oysters, or in two and a half apples, or in two bananas. Although bread and butter is nourishing, most of us like to vary the diet with something of higher flavor, whether it is nourishing or not.

Damascus, probably the oldest living city in the world, has become modern. In February electric lights flashed through the city and electric cars began to purr along its ancient ways. The American consul general at Beirut says that until a year ago electricity was under ban in Turkey. The ban has been raised chiefly by American influence, and concessions have been granted for light and cars in other Turkish cities.

For some time the duchess of Marlborough has been engaged in philanthropic work among the poor young women of London. Recently she presided at an exhibition of the National Physical Recreation society, given by clubs of working girls, and made a sensible and graceful address, which was well received.

STRINGS TIGHTENING

SOME SIGNS OF MORE STRINGENT MONEY CONDITIONS.

That Result Would Seem to Be the Logical Consequence of Unsettling Business Confidence by Premature Tariff Agitation and an Unwise Foreign Trade Policy.

Not long ago the Des Moines Capital, a Republican newspaper, reviewing the tariff ripping action of the National Association of Manufacturers, remarked:

"If there is to be tariff ripping, you had better tie the string a little tighter around your pocketbook."

Has the tightening process already begun? There are many men eminent in circles of industry, commerce and finance who think they see signs of tighter conditions. Why do they think this? Reasons are not wanting.

First among these reasons for thinking that a period of tightened pocketbooks is at hand is the growing tendency to disturb sound business conditions. For more than three years past this tendency has taken the form of agitation for tariff revision.

To agitate for tariff revision is no new thing in the country's history. The party that was out has always agitated for the revision of the tariff made by the party that was in. But it is a new thing in American politics for the party that is in to wholly discredit and completely undermine a tariff of its own making. Yet this is what has actually happened.

Tariff revision talk has become so fashionable in the Republican party that those who deprecate tariff disturbance as bad for business, bad for labor, and bad for prosperity, are censured as obstructionists, enemies of progress, worshipers of a fetich, standpatters. Yet these men have only stood for stability of business conditions and for a postponement of tariff agitation until revision should be plainly required in the general interest.

Nevertheless, the rage for tariff disturbance has gone on and on, encouraged by ambitious politicians, and helped along by newspapers which find it easier to recklessly criticise than to judiciously commend, until at last an influential body of American producers, manipulated by free traders and selfish interests bent upon expanding their own foreign trade at the expense of other lines of domestic industry, has put itself on record as favoring tariff revision "at the earliest practical moment," and in the meantime the installment of a general system of reciprocity in competing products.

Is there not in all this enough to tighten money strings?

Then, to crown all, came governmental interference in favor of tariff instability in the form of a commercial arrangement whereby foreign producers are by means of openly recognized undervaluation privileges permitted to escape the full payment of the tariff duties prescribed by law.

Just how far this extraordinary straining of executive authority for the benefit of foreign competitors is going to go in the direction of unsettling and demoralizing domestic industrial conditions no man can with certainty predict. The new arrangement went into effect July 1, 1907, and some time will be required in which to demonstrate its workings. Detrimental consequences are confidently predicted by wise, experienced and conservative men, and a feeling of alarm is already manifesting itself among many lines of domestic production.

It is believed that in giving to competing producers in the lower wage countries the right to undervalue their goods exported to this country the tariff has already been revised downward by diplomatic dicker and executive sanction.

It is believed that a dangerous precedent has been established when tariff schedules can be by indirection altered without the knowledge, consent or approval of congress, and without consulting the domestic interests certain to be affected.

Is there not enough in this to tighten money strings?

First, a persistent determination to create business instability through tariff revision downward.

Second, the actual revision of the tariff downward through the German agreement, which is to be followed by similar agreements with other countries.

Taken together there would seem to be enough in these two conditions to account for the tightening of money strings.

The Results.

"Under the leadership of that great statesman and patriot, Richard Cobden, himself a cotton spinner, the English manufacturers earnestly supported the demand for free trade. In a house of commons elected to maintain protection and under the ministry of a former ardent protectionist, Sir Robert Peel, the whole system was swept away, corn laws, navigation laws, and all. The results need not be described."—Philadelphia Record.

The results are too well known to require description. British manufacturers are being undersold in the British market, the United Kingdom has become a dumping ground for the cheaper wares of competitive countries, British workmen in vast numbers are out of employment, and the British pauper percentage is the highest of any civilized nation. These are the results of displacing protection and installing free trade.

KEEP UP WORKERS' WAGES.

Tariff Tax on Printed Matter Shown to Be Good Thing.

The Philadelphia Record complains of the tariff on books as "a tax on the mind." It probably does operate that way on the mind of a free trader, for he wants to buy everything where it is the cheapest, no matter what becomes of American employment and wages. Twenty-five per cent. ad valorem is the tariff on all books, pamphlets, etc., printed in the English language. On books printed in other than the English language there is no tariff.

It is purely a matter of wages, the cost of paper being practically the same here and abroad. In Great Britain the pay of compositors, pressmen and bookbinders is 30 per cent. lower than in the United States. In Germany these workmen receive not more than 50 per cent. of American wages. Large quantities of books and other printed matter in the English language are produced in Germany and shipped over to Great Britain, where no tariff bars this low priced competition.

But for our tariff of 25 per cent. Germany would do a big trade in printing for the United States. We are not sure but the Record itself would find it a saving to send over the "copy" for its Sunday supplements and have the composition and press work done in Germany. Certain it is that if the 25 per cent. tariff did not stand in the way many millions of pages of books, pamphlets, catalogues, etc., would be set up, printed and bound in the low wage printing houses of Europe that are now produced in this country and give employment to great numbers of American printers, pressmen and binders.

Considering the extraordinary abundance and cheapness of good literature in the United States, and also the economic value of maintaining the superior American wage scale, the criticism of that 25 per cent. tariff seems puerile indeed.

HARK! FROM THE TOMBS A DOLEFUL SOUND.

Massachusetts' Mugwump Nightmare.

The masses of both parties in Massachusetts know that Canadian reciprocity is resented by Canada; that our trade with Canada breaks all records—the past year, gaining more than English trade with Canada, and that under the Dingley tariff Massachusetts has advanced by leaps and bounds, while under the Wilson-Gorman tariff—the joint product of Whitneyism and of Fossism—Massachusetts cotton factories and shoe shops were distressed.

The masses want no more confusion of the trust problem with the tariff problem—they stand for federal regulation of the trusts and for tariff changes along protective lines, not when the country's business is bigger than it can handle, but when business is so bad that business would be promoted by the necessary disturbance of tariff schedules.

Between Democratic Douglas and Moran, bipartisan Guild and bipartisan Whitney, the student of American politics has data as adequate for the philosophy of the spoils system as for the psychology of opportunism, whether expressed in the limited concerns of the importer or in the trust system, awarding economic salvation only to those who are "organized," whether with Moran and George Fred or with Guild and Whitney, uniformly for the mugwump nightmare, but labeled as opposite "parties."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

The Substantial Part.

The substantial part of the concession to which this country has been committed is to be found in the regulations which have been issued from the treasury department for the guidance of the American officials upon whom the enforcement of the "deal" will devolve. If these regulations do not materially facilitate the sale in the American market of many more articles than those expressly mentioned in the agreement a number of German manufacturers are going to be sadly disappointed. — Philadelphia Inquirer.

Has Been Taken Care Of.

"Few Americans will object to reciprocity that reciprocates so very much to our advantage. But how about the German manufacturer?—Brooklyn Eagle.

Don't worry about the German manufacturer. He has been well taken care of. The privilege of fixing an "export price" on goods shipped to this country will be worth to him anywhere from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year in lower duties paid.

CLOUDBURST

Caused Havoc at Pittsburg and Wheeling.

A TERRIFIC STORM

Resulted in Landslides that Tied Up Street Railroads—Lightning Did Great Damage.

Pittsburg, Pa.—With a gale blowing almost 50 miles an hour a storm broke over this city and vicinity last night that broke all records for precipitation, and terrified residents with the sharp flashes of lightning and almost deafening peals of thunder. Thousands of dollars' damage was done to street railways by the washing out of tracks, and the landslides among the hilly sections of the county buried many tracks that took hours to unearth. From all sections of the county reports of great damage by the washouts and lightning are coming in.

At Valley Camp, a summer resort near this city, the residence of Col. W. C. Connelly, of this city, was struck by lightning and 20 cottagers of the camp assembled in the dwelling were stunned. The upper story of the building caught fire, but was extinguished by a bucket brigade. In the East End section of this city trolley, telephone and telegraph wires were torn down and lay about the streets, necessitating an extra force of men to warn pedestrians of danger.

The precipitation as registered at the local weather bureau was 89-100 inches, which fell within 30 minutes.

Wheeling, W. Va. — A cloudburst that broke over this city last night inflicted damage aggregating thousands of dollars. One life was lost, that of Lee Prettiman, a teamster, who was drowned while trying to get his horse away from the rush of water in the southern section of the city. All traffic on the trolley lines was suspended, bridges on all roads were washed away and the streets of the business section were flooded from house to house.

A BAD PRE-EMINENCE.

American Railways Kill and Injure More People than Those of Any Other Country.

Berlin.—Herr Guillery, an official of the Prussian railway administration, has prepared a comparative table of statistics of those killed and injured by railways in various countries. He finds that both absolutely and relatively the railroads in the United States are the most deadly. The United States has more mileage than all Europe, but even taking that into consideration, the United States holds pre-eminence in proportional figures.

Out of every 1,000 railway employes the ratio of the number injured each year is as follows:

United States 43.5, Switzerland 25.3, England 11.8, Belgium 11, Germany 2.4.

Out of every 10,000 employes the relative figures of killed are: United States 26.1, England 12.3, Switzerland 8.2, Russia 7.8, British India 6.7, Belgium 4.1.

Herr Guillery finds that in a single year—the fiscal year of 1902-3, 76,500 persons were injured in the United States, of whom 60,000 were employes, and 9,800 were killed, of whom 3,600 were employes.

In the matter of travelers injured France holds the lowest record in the world. United States shows proportionately 40 times as many injured as Russia, 22 times as many as Italy, 20 times as many as England, eight times as many as Belgium, four times as many as Switzerland and twice as many as Germany.

THE DAWN OF A NEW ERA.

King Leopold's Reign Over the Congo Free State Is About to Terminate.

Brussels.—The close of King Leopold's long struggle to stave off annexation of the Congo to Belgium and to retain his personal sovereignty over this rich and extensive African state, is foreshadowed in the agreement reached between the Belgian and Congo governments, elaborating the terms upon which the Congo Free State shall pass into the possession of Belgium.

This transfer will mark an important epoch for the Congo, as heretofore the entire conduct of affairs, civil and military, has been under the personal direction of King Leopold and a cabinet of Congo officers entirely separate from and independent of Belgium, whereas the new regime will make the Belgian government instead of the king individually responsible for the conduct of Congo affairs. The British and American governments have favored placing this governmental responsibility on Belgium.

Buffalo Club Won Glidden Trophy.

New York.—The 1,550-mile tour of the American Automobile association from Cleveland via Chicago to New York ended in Jersey City Wednesday. About 50 cars out of the 100 starters finished. The Buffalo Automobile club, of Buffalo, N. Y., won the Glidden trophy.

Special Session Adjourns.

Albany, N. Y.—The special session of the legislature adjourned last evening. The direct nomination bill recommended by the governor was beaten.

PAPA PREPARED.

"And now, darling," said the young man, when the question had been duly proposed and favorably answered, "I suppose I must face the interview with your father. Will he be frightfully angry?'

"Oh, I don't think so, replied the fair girl. "Of course he'll be awfully surprised, but I'm sure that after a bit he'll give in and it will be all right.'

Then Henry went and manfully knocked at the smoking-room door, and papa called out:

"Come in, young man. What an awful time you've been settling that little matter! Of course my answer is 'Yes.' Bless you!"

Words of Wisdom.

"And now," said the venerable college president, in closing his address to the graduates on commencement day, "I am moved to offer a few words of advice to the young ladies of the class."

He paused a moment and looked at the faces before him.

"But I see," he added, "it would be of no use."

Then he sat down amid loud cheers from the sweet young men graduates.—Chicago Tribune.

HIS BENEFIT.

She—So you really imagine that smoking benefits you?

He—I know it does! My mother-in-law leaves the room the minute I light my cigar!—Chicago Journal.

Darkness Preferred.

The usual semiannual bankrupt sale was about to take place in a certain clothing "emporium," and a huge wooden billboard, covered with advertisements announcing the fact, was erected just outside the windows.

"But," objected the new clerk, "won't those boards shut out all the light?"

"Sh!" returned the proprietor. "What do you suppose I put 'em up for?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Poor but Honest Parents.

"Well, my little man, what's your complaint?" asked the passerby.

"Hungry, sir. Haven't had anything to eat to-day,' replied the little fellow.

"Have you no parents?"

"Yes, sir; but father's a poet and mother plays bridge whist!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Women Paddlers.

Bacon—They say the business of the gondoliers of Venice is being invaded by women. How'd you like to be paddled by a woman?

Egbert—Excuse me! I was paddled by my mother when I was a boy. That's all I want!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Hurting the Eyes.

Yeast—Nearly everybody in Boston wears glasses, I believe?

Crimsonbeak—That's my belief.

"Do you suppose beans hurt the eyes?"

"Well, if they come out of a bean-shooter, they are likely to."—Yonkers Statesman.

The English Way.

Bacon—Railway servants in England are supposed to receive $1,500,000 a year in tips.

Egbert—Some of the money goes to attendants for allowing you to look after your own trunk. — Yonkers Statesman.

VIRTUE IN HARMONY

HOW COOPERATION OF THE PEOPLE OF A COMMUNITY WINS.

STICKING TOGETHER COUNTS

Often is heard protest against what is called clannishness among foreigners who become citizens of the United States. It is claimed that they carry old-country ideas with them to the new land, and refuse to mingle with other than their own nationality. In defense of these foreigners who are thus charged, it is but fair to say that many of them labor under the misapprehension that they are not looked upon by the older American citizens as companionable. Often their lack of a knowledge of the English language makes their own class desirable associates. It will be observed that in one or two generations condition changes and the children of these foreigners become thoroughly Americanized.

It would be well if some of the traits of clannishness that are manifest in foreign colonies be generally practiced throughout the United States. In 1848 an effort was made to colonize land in Missouri with a progressive class of German citizens. The events immediately following this effort, the loss of one shipload of immigrants and the subsequent sufferings of the newcomers, is a matter of history. But undaunted hundreds of those who at that time sought homes in the new country, gained for themselves enviable places in the annals of American history, and they founded communities that may well be held up as models worthy to be copied. In Gasconade county, Missouri, a large colony of these people sought homes. There they tilled the soil and cultivated vineyards. They were of one tongue and of one religious belief, a highly moral, hard-working people, and their aim was to found homes for themselves and their progeny. To-day in Gasconade county there is more evidence of wealth, of culture and harmony among the people than can be found in any like area of the United States.

From the founding of the colony it was recognized that if progress be made that the wealth produced by members should be retained. Mills were gradually built for the conversion of the grain into flour, wine presses were found on almost every homestead, and towns were built. Among the first institutions established were schools and churches, and these to-day are prominent factors in the molding of the character of the people.

It was one of the rules of the colony to assist one another. Each one while working for himself and his family, realized that it was to his advantage to patronize his neighbor. Thus when the towns were started and stores opened, it was made a rule that these stores be patronized and that the store-keeper be allowed a fair profit for the goods he sold. Tailor shops, boot and shoe makers, soap makers, and even the brewers of beer found their customers solely among the members of the colony. Although St. Louis was within a few hours' ride, the members of the colony considered that the dollars kept in the little town instead of being spent in St. Louis meant much for the advancement of the place. As years passed by members of the colony became prosperous. Families were reared and children married, additional homesteads were secured and there was a thorough cooperation among all towards making life agreeable and giving each member of the community a means of acquiring a competency. One of the early undertakings was the building of macadamized roads. These roads to-day are kept in the best of condition and have proved a matter of economy to the county. Schools and churches, which at first were roughly built, have been replaced with magnificent edifices which are sources of pride to the residents of the community. Some of the small business places of 40 or 50 years ago have grown to be of almost national importance. In fact all residents of the community are independent, and a few of them possessors of great wealth. How successful they have been is shown by the absence of paupers in the county. There are no public charges, neither is there any great expense as to maintaining a county jail.

This community is but one of many in the Mississippi valley and throughout the west. Such communities have been built up solely by the simple adherence to cooperation among members and a following out of the home-trade principle. Members realized that every dollar earned in the community and sent to some other place robbed the community of so much wealth, and that this dollar ceased to be a factor in increasing the importance and progress of the place. In these communities are generally located flouring mills. The output of these mills finds local sale and the surplus is sent to the markets to bring in money from the outside. It appears that if the simple economical methods of many classes of citizens of foreign birth were to be practiced more generally by people residing in various agricultural communities of the United States, it would be wholesome and that these communities would make greater progress. The practice that has grown up of patronizing other than home institutions has elements of evil that are well worthy of careful study. In these years of progress the inclination to economize in small things and to save a penny by sending dollars to the large cities often results in heavy losses to the people. Yet there is an under-current at work, an awakening to the importance of the people of every community more closely cooperating for the advancement of the interests of all.

OPPORTUNITIES NEAR HOME.

Progressive Towns Offer Excellent Advantages for Young Men.

Students in sociology have recently expressed pessimistic views as to chances for the success of young men of country districts. There has been no denying of the fact that the farm affords a splendid opportunity for those inclined towards a pastoral life, but it is maintained that of recent years conditions preclude any great chances for the average young man to succeed in the average business vocation. That is that the channels for his development are being made more narrow year after year through the formation of corporations and trusts for the control of various industries. In other words, the centralization of business is considered detrimental to the pursuing of business in mercantile lines on a small scale.

This subject is open to wide discussion. Cities and towns of the United States are rapidly building up. The population of the country is increasing wonderfully. With this increase in population new opportunities present themselves for the exercise of intelligent endeavor. The towns, particularly of the west, are embryo cities, and the little village of to-day will be the large city a quarter century hence. Almost every town affords the progressive young man a chance for business success. Opportunities are plentiful for those who have the foresight to discover them. Towns are built up where are certain natural advantages and their growth is dependent upon the territory that they can draw support from, or upon some particular advantage that they may possess favorable to manufacturing along certain lines. The opportunities for young men are to some extent guaged by the life and progress of the towns. Heads of families look forward to the time when their sons may enter into business or professional life. Ties of kinship are strong and few parents care to have grown sons and daughters far away from them. In this is discovered a reason why residents of a rural district should take more than ordinary interest in the home town. The more important the local town the greater are the opportunities for the young men of the neighborhood engaging in business in it. In thousands of cities and towns of the United States the leading business men to-day are the boys who were farmers' sons a quarter or a half century ago. In modest ways they started in business in the home town, and with the progress of the town developed as business men. The opportunities that were opened to those youths are still open to the youths of to-day, but remember that many of these men would not have been the great business men they are to-day only for the fact the towns where they located were progressive places which gave the opportunity to succeed.

COMMON SENSE ECONOMICS.

Simple Principles for Application in Everyday Affairs.

He who aims to be fair toward his neighbor will not deny him the opportunity to make an honest living. The day laborer should be as well rewarded, according to his work, as is the merchant or the banker.

Merchants are shortsighted when they will order potatoes or other vegetables by the carload from another town when right in their neighborhood farmers have just as good potatoes to sell, and perhaps at a lower price. No use in paying the commission man a percentage in a case like this.

From fruit-growing sections year after year reports come as to the rotting of the crops on accouunt of the poor transportation facilities, or refusal of buyers in the large cities to pay prices sufficient to pay for gathering. Here is an opportunity for the manifestation of local enterprise. Why not start small drying and canning establishments to use up the surplus fruit? Such establishments could be profitably conducted, and operated with benefit to all the people of the community.

There is little economy for the storekeepers to keep on their shelves goods that are likely to grow out of date, or deteriorate in value. Better sell all such goods at actual cost, and give the people of the neighborhood the benefit of lowest prices.

People are interested in prices of goods. The wise merchants fully appreciate the value of the home paper as a medium of intercourse with their customers. Well-written advertisements and the naming of prices attract attention, for the average person when his attention is called to an article always wants to know the cost.

One dollar circulated in a community is worth to it $50 circulated in some other place. A district is made wealthy only by retaining in it the dollars that are earned within it, or which may be brought to it through commerce.

HIGH COURT

Of Guatemala Confirms Death Sentences.

ALLEGED PLOTTERS

Guatemala City. — The supreme court of Guatemala has confirmed the death penalty on all those sentenced in connection with the recent attempt to assassinate President Cabrera and who had appealed their cases to the highest court.

On July 1 a dispatch from Guatemala stated that 160 citizens of that republic had been arrested on the charge of complicity in an attempt to assassinate Cabrera. All were thrown into prison and subsequently many of the accused were sentenced to death. Among the men in prison were some of the most wealthy and prominent in Guatemala.

Immediately upon the arrests becoming known the diplomatic corps at Guatemala, with the exception of Philip M. Brown, the United States charge, protested. No attention being paid to these protests the British minister was charged with drawing up a note in which the trial of those arrested were characterized as a farce. This note was sent to the various governments having representatives at Guatemala.

On July 23 a dispatch from Guatemala stated that many of the minor political offenders recently sentenced by the courts had been pardoned and that those under sentence of death would also probably be released shortly. It was also stated that Germany, Italy, Spain and Mexico had sent notes to the Guatemalan government pointing out that prisoners under arrest for complicity in the attempted assassination were still held, and that neither the civil nor military courts had taken any action in the case, in spite of the fact that the time allowed by law had long since expired.

SPIES HIRED BY TURKS.

They Are Alleged to be Engaged in the Work of Discrediting Armenians in This Country.

New York.—Rev. Levont Martoogessan, once treasurer of the Hunchakist, the Armenian society which outsiders say has fallen from its high estate of patriotism to the practice of blackmail, on Friday gave a new twist to the district attorney's investigation of the organization.

The priest had been subpenaed to tell what he knew. This was to the effect that the present agitation, ostensibly directed by reputable Armenians against a band of assassins, was in fact inspired by the Turkish government, whose hired spies sought to discredit the patriotic Armenians in this country.

The pastor of the Armenian Apostles' church had, he admitted, formerly been a member and the treasurer of the Hunchakist, but some time ago withdrew. He knew nothing of the murder of the rug merchant Tavshanjian, who had refused to pay $10,000 for his life, and if extortion had been practiced he knew nothing of it. On the contrary, he told the district attorney that he himself was the object of persecution on the part of the Turkish government. Pressed to throw light on the work of the conspirators the priest replied:

"You are a rich and powerful nation and you can find out more than I can."

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Dun's Review Says There is Little Complaint of Midsummer Dullness.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

It is noteworthy that there is practically none of the customary complaint of midsummer dullness in commercial or industrial channels. On the contrary, reports from many cities announce that all the backwardness of the early season in light weight fabrics has been made up, and the liberal distribution of merchandise is accompanied by steady improvement in mercantile collections. Preparations for fall and winter proceed with evident confidence and lines that usually report frequent cancellations at this season are holding their business nearly intact.

In the leading industries there is little idle machinery, steel and cotton mills reporting orders further into the future than other branches, and the only menace to more new records of pig iron production is the interruption to ore movement by the strike that has reduced shipments about 2,000,000 tons in three weeks.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

St. Thomas, Ont.—A locomotive attached to a Wabash freight train blew up one mile east of Simcoe last night. Engineer Ben Patterson and Fireman James Calvert were killed. A brakeman was scalded and a conductor badly injured.

Nine Men Drowned.

Toronto, Ont.—During a heavy thunder storm Thursday night a gasoline launch with ten men on board capsized in Lake Ontario and only one succeeded in reaching the nearby shore.

MADE A NEW RECORD.

SONOMA GIRL WON THE MERCHANTS AND MANUFACTURERS' STAKE AT DETROIT.

Second Heat Was Trotted in 2:06¼, a World's Record for a Green Mare.

Detroit, Mich.—Thursday's sun set on the greatest renewal of the Merchants and Manufacturers' stake ever trotted. The most remarkable exhibition of speed ever known on the light harness turf was won by Sonoma Girl on her courage and speed and stamped herself the fleetest of her sex in parts of the journey, if not for a whole mile, when the supreme test comes later in the season.

The track was lightning fast, the water under the surface serving as a cushion to send the flying feet along in their journey.

Sonoma Girl had closed a favorite at $50, Highball $44 and the field $26, and in some pooling she ranked $50 to $35 over the field. When they scored the first time Sonoma Girl was on the run, jumping as though mad. Time and again she acted badly and there was a wild scramble among the betters. Driver Springer changed sulkys and she went level, then back-jumped and finally when the word was given on the ninth score she was ten lengths behind the rest, though on a trot. Highball, from the outside, shot to the pole and the quarter in 30 seconds, being ten lengths ahead at the half. Springer got Sonoma Girl going on the first turn and she rattled off a middle half in 59¼ seconds, landing in second place, but being unable to catch Highball, who went the mile in 2:07½, a new record for the stake.

Next time they got away on the third score and rushed to the half in 1:00½, where Highball had an open length on the mare. At the three-quarters Springer set her going and she marched up to and by Highball as though he was tied to a post. Such a flight of speed had never been seen and when Sonoma Girl got down the stretch Springer pulled her until she was jogging in 2:06¼, a second new record for the stake and the world's record for a green mare.

The third heat was a plain work mile for Sonoma Girl, as she won at every part of it.

The rest of the racing was clever and fast.

JEWISH WOMEN LED RIOTERS.

Butcher Shops in Philadelphia Were Sacked by Yiddish Mobs.

Philadelphia, Pa. — The Jewish quarter in the southern section of the city was the scene of many disturbances and incipient riots Thursday following the efforts of Yiddish women to boycott kosher butchers who have increased the price of meats. All through the Ghetto there were fierce outbreaks in which persons who attempted to patronize the stores were roughly handled. In several instances the stores were sacked and the meat destroyed.

The women gathered in front of the stores and seized every person who entered. The meat the customers had purchased was taken away from them and tossed in the streets after coal oil or acid had been poured over it. In three shops oil was poured over every piece of meat, the chopping blocks and counters were overturned and the windows in the stores were demolished.

The police of three districts were kept on the run answering riot calls and reserve squads had to be sent to their assistance.

As a result of the outbreaks 28 men and women were either sent to prison or held in bail for court to answer charges of assault and inciting to riot and as many more were arrested and locked up for hearings on minor charges.

Because most of the disturbers were women the police at first hesitated to use force in trying to disperse the mobs in front of the stores, but the situation became serious and they were finally compelled to use severe measures and a number of men and women were sent to the hospitals suffering from injuries received in resisting the officers. None was seriously hurt, however, and the authorities have the situation well in hand.

The kosher butchers at a meeting last night decided to close their stores until the wholesalers shall reduce the price on meats to a scale that will enable the retailers to sell to their customers at prices within their means.

Is Accused of Cruelty.

San Francisco, Cal.—Third Officer Hawes, of the wrecked steamer Columbia, whose sworn report of the disaster charged Capt. Hansen, of the San Pedro, with refusing to aid in the rescue of the passengers, is now charged by survivors who occupied the same boat with him, with conduct more cruel than that specified by him in his report. The charges against Hawse are: Refusing to give his coat to an unconscious woman rescued from the water in a freezing condition. Ordering a sailor to strike a crippled man who he believed occupied too much space in the boat. Refusing to assist in dragging men and women from the water.

Great Van Amburg Shows.

WATERPROOF TENTS—RAIN WILL NOT SPOIL THE EXHIBITION.

A sudden downpour of rain or a long continued drizzle will have no effect on the patrons of the great Van Amburg Shows when it exhibits here. The reason of this will be apparent to every one who sees the huge tents that will be erected here for the performance. They are all constructed of "mercerized" ducking. This marvelous invention for the waterproofing of material has been in use for rain coats, but up to this year has never been used for tents. People who have used "mercerized" cloth know how it sheds water, and it was the knowledge of this that caused the Van Amburg Shows to have all of their tents made out of this material. It is quite a stride in advance of other shows, but it is only in keeping with the progressiveness of the management of those shows. Beneath these tents spectators can sit in comfort and ease during the heaviest of rains and be as dry as if in the finest theater in the country. This is only one of the many novelties that have been added to these shows this season.

It is respectfully suggested that the children attend the afternoon exhibition, where ample time is given to view the large menagerie, likewise avoiding the night crowds. Uniformed ushers will attend every want of the little folks, and the care and attention paid to ladies and children is the first consideration of the management.

The only big circus that will visit here this year is the Great Van Amburg Shows, and the date is Saturday, Aug. 10th.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c.

An Epitaph.

In a little churchyard near Llanymynech, Wales, is a tombstone with these lines upon it:

In crossing o'er the fatal bridge
John Morgan he was slain,
But it was not by mortal hand,
But by a railway train.

John Morgan was the huntsman to the Tanatside harriers and paid the capital penalty for taking a short cut along the Cambrian line.

Intelligent Strength.

It is known that the largest church bells may be set in motion by a man or even a boy who pulls the ropes attached to them at proper and regular intervals, even when their weight of metal is so great that the strongest man could scarcely move them sensibly if he did not apply his strength in determinate periodical intervals.—Helmholtz.

Not Literal.

"Papa, this paper says a lot of men in office had their heads cut off. Did they cut them off with an ax?"

"No, my boy; with a sharp move."—Baltimore American.

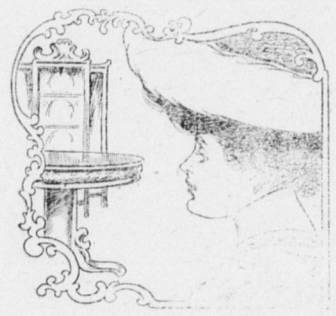
Furniture

The Choosing of Furniture



Is a most important undertaking for every lady. Furniture is not duplicated often, so every purchase must be made with taste and discrimination. It is a purchase that is intended, and expected, to last a long time, so durability must be considered as well as appearances. In every article of Furniture that is shown to you in our establishment you will note that st rength and durability accompany elegance of appearance.

OUR SERIAL

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1907, by Story-Press Corporation.)

"How would it do to get your brother's own opinion and see how he feels?" I suggested. "Either you or I, or even both of us, might write him and put the matter clearly before him. If there is any good left in him—you will pardon me, Miss Carney, I hope, for I spoke very thoughtlessly—but he ought to come to his senses and decide for himself."

She looked up into my face, her eyes wet with tears, but with a wan smile that was evidently conjured up for the moment, and said, gently:

"You need not ask my forgiveness, Mr. Ware, for you always think and speak for the best, and my own feelings toward Jack are the same as yours. I have never mentioned his name to you before for I could not bear to think of those awful days he spent here after my father's death, and I am so glad that poor Annie did not see him then as I did. He knew that he was not fit for her to see and I must say that he showed himself to me only enough to enable us to arrange our business affairs. He seemed to understand the degradation of his position, and although I have never written to him in all these years, my heart warms to him now and I want to overlook it, but I cannot, oh I cannot, Mr. Ware."

"Would you like me to write to him myself?" I asked. "I could hardly explain matters in a telegram, and while I never know exactly where he is I have reason to believe that he is in the neighborhood of London or Paris. A letter to his bankers would reach him within a week or ten days and he could be here in a little more than a fortnight."

"You know best," she murmured, resting her head on her hand and wiping her eyes slowly. "You know best and must act according to your own judgment. It seems to me that we ought to send for him, if only for Annie's sake, but I leave it all to you."

Her feelings overwhelmed her again, but as soon as she could calm herself, she went on: "Perhaps I have been wrong myself in not trying to help him and make him see the position in which he has placed himself, but when he was here I could not bring myself to do it."

I remembered Miss Weston's impassioned statement that no one connected with the mysterious happenings at Carney-Croft had done any wrong or was in any way responsible for the present inexplicable condition of things, and, while I could not see how John Carney could have any possible connection with the affair I grasped the frail straw offered by this suggestion and, in my anxiety to calm Miss Carney, I made the most of it that I could.

"I know nothing of your brother's life while he was away," I began, "and, while, of course, I do not count him blameless, I can assure you that you have nothing to regret on your part. You know things of this kind begin slowly and insidiously and—"

"Oh, no!" she interrupted, vehemently, "it was a cowardly way to act, at best, and, as I first understood it, it was worse than cowardly. You can imagine my feelings when I thought it was all for a mere lover's quarrel and then—then, when I knew the whole story, I could not bring myself to view it in a much better light, although, of course, my sympathies all went out to him. It was not the act of such a man as I had always thought Jack to be. I had looked up to him and respected him all my life and it almost broke my heart—it almost broke my heart. You wouldn't do such a thing, Mr. Ware, I know, and even if you try to hide your real opinion of him, I understand too well what it is—and he is my brother—my only brother!"

She sobbed convulsively for some minutes, while I stood like a fool by her side, keeping down, as best I could, the words that were uppermost in my heart and then, suddenly, she arose and said, abruptly:

"I have kept you too long, I fear, but this was troubling me so that I simply had to tell it to some one. I think you had better write to my brother at once and it will have to rest with him whether he comes or not. Good night."

I followed her with my eyes as she entered the house and walked slowly up the stairs.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Trail Discovered.

Another sleepless night followed, but long before the morning broke I had formed an opinion of myself and my conduct that was in no way flattering to either. To be sure, I had been sincere in every thought and act, and when, at times, I had felt and believed that Miss Carney loved me, I had soon argued myself into an opposite way of thinking on the ground, as I have said before, that her feelings toward me were influenced and magnified by her present anxiety and distress. Now, however, after considering the matter through the long hours of the night until my brain fairly reeled and I was sick at heart at the thought of my brutal behavior, I was at last able to see things in a right light.

Miss Carney had given me every evidence of her regard that she could give and still preserve her digninty and womanliness. She had doubtless realized the difficulties of my position, and she had taken into account that her brother's absence served as an added reason for my silence, and so she had met me more than half way and yet I had remained silent.

She had even permitted me to kiss her hand, and then, on the first occasion that offered, she had given me an opportunity to say the words that I owed to her if she would preserve her self-respect and not consider that I had trifled with her in a most cruel and unmanly way. And still I had remained silent, in an egotistical belief that my attitude was chivalrous and commendable when, in fact, it was only Quixotic and brutally unkind.

Now, she could only think that I did not love her, for surely she could not conceive that a sane man would have acted the part I did on the veranda unless he regarded her almost with indifference.

I rose and paced the floor until my head throbbed, hating myself and trying to smother my emotions until the morning came and I could go to her and beg her forgiveness.

As the day began to dawn a cold gray light spread itself over the fields, showing the hoar-frost on the grass and bringing clearly into view many distant objects which stood out sharply in the crisp autumn air.

I Stood Spell-Bound with Fear.

I glanced from my window and saw what appeared to be two people walking slowly down the hillside in the direction of the Bruce cottage. A hasty scrutiny through my field glasses confirmed my suspicion and it seemed that one figure, that of a man, carried an implement like a spade or shovel, while the other was evidently a woman of about the widow's size and general appearance.

I dressed rapidly, and, slipping out of the house, made my way as quickly as I could to the point where I had seen them passing, feeling sure that I would have no difficulty in following their trail through the frost-covered grass.

It was all I had expected, and I walked rapidly up the hill, retracing the path they had made, and, occasionally leaving the trail where it led too directly through the open, and slinking along in the shadow of the hedges until I could again take it up with safety.

About half way up the incline I turned and looked down toward the Bruce cottage, from the chimney of which a black column of smoke was pouring and whose windows were brightly lighted as if something of importance was going on within.

As I looked, and I had taken the precaution to bring my binoculars with me, a man emerged from the house and I had no difficulty in making him out to be Jenks, the stage driver. He was followed in a moment by Mrs. Bruce and the two stood for some time in earnest conversation, after which the man strode rapidly down the road and the woman reentered the house.

It had seemed to me that the widow and Jenks were quarreling, for, during their talk, he had gesticulated violently and shown every evidence of extreme earnestness, if not of actual anger; but they must have come to some sort of an agreement at last, for he waved his hand pleasantly as he left her and she returned his salutation by throwing him a kiss as coyly as a schoolgirl.

The first thing the woman did after entering the house was to extinguish the lights, no longer necessary, as the rays of the sun began to touch the hilltops, and I was just lowering my glass when I caught a fleeting glimpse of another man, darting around the corner of the building and disappearing behind the woodpile. I watched in vain for him to show himself again, but he did not, and finally, I turned and followed the trail once more, making all possible haste, lest I should lose it when the frost disappeared.

The foot prints led me up on the hill and around to the side away from the house and, at length, became lost in a grove of hemlocks under which there was no tell-tale frost. For a time it seemed that my efforts were to prove of no avail, and that I might as well return home, but the more I thought of the matter the more I was convinced that these people had been out for no good purpose, and that it was my duty to learn, if possible, what mischief they had been contriving at this early hour and where they had been.

In fact, I suddenly realized that I had not taken a proper interest in the mysterious happenings at Carney-Croft and that while it had seemed quite enough to bring them to a standstill, as far as outward appearances were concerned, they were, in reality, of far too great importance to let pass so easily.

Miss Weston's connection with the affair gave a new aspect to it, of course, and while I was bound by my word to respect her secret there was nothing in my promise to her to prevent me from using every legitimate means to find out all that I could on my own account and make use of such knowledge as I might acquire in any way that would best serve my purposes without reacting on her.

I wandered about, more or less aimlessly, in the grove until, as I was on the point of leaving in chagrin, I again discovered the tracks in the frost leading across a little open space from another and denser grove near by. I plunged at once into this and had no trouble in directing my steps through the underbrush, which was broken and bent in many places and showed plainly the course taken by the man and woman but a short time before.

After going on in this way for some little distance I suddenly found myself in a small clearing under the branches of the overtowering trees, and saw, to my horror, an oblong space of newly turned earth which bore every resemblance in size and general appearance to a grave.

For several minutes I stood spellbound with fear and dread and then, summoning up all my courage and with a cold sweat standing out on my body, I began to dig down in the soft brown earth, using a stick that was lying near by, and even my hands, to remove the stones and larger clumps of soil.

About a foot below the surface I came upon a bundle wrapped in cloths of the same kind in every way as those found by MacArdel and myself on the night when we first saw the ghosts and shot at Jenks.

I could bear no more for the moment, and quaking visibly. I rose from the ground and leaned against a tree for support. Then, for the first time, I saw that there were many other little mounds surrounding the one I had opened and—but I had reached the limit of my endurance, and, with pallid face, I dashed madly down the hill toward Carney-Croft.

Her Pointed Retort.

When the old lady put her head out of the window and inquired of the young railway porter what the train was stopping for the young man thought he would have a little fun at the old lady's expense.

"Engine was out late last night, ma'am,' he remarked with a smile, "so she's got a thirst on her this morning; they're giving 'er a drop o' wine."

"Ah! it's water,' said the old lady.

"If you'll wait a minutte, ma'am,' he grinned, "I'll inquire whether they're givin' her port wine."

"Never mind,' came the answer, "don't you trouble, young man. I thought perhaps by the way we've been getting along she was run on sloe gin!'—London Tit-Bits.

LIFE INSURANCE ACTIVITY.

The New York Life's Business Nearly Up to the Legal Limit.

The New York Life Insurance Company announces that its new paid business during the half year just ended was over seventy million dollars. As the new law allows no life company to write over one hundred and fifty millions per year, it would appear that this company is working nearly up to the limit. The New York Life gained such headway before the law was passed and suffered so little, comparatively, from the Armstrong investigation, that the question with its management has been how to keep business down to the limit, rather than how to reach it. No other company is writing nearly as much as the law allows. The New York Life has evidently become a preferred company.

The company's payments to policy holders during the six months ending June 30 were $21,660,761. It is interesting to note that this amount was almost equally divided between payments under policies maturing by death and payments made to living policy holders. Thus, while death-claims were $11,180,626, the amount paid for matured endowments, annuities, trust fund installments, for purchased policies and for dividends was $10,480,135. Modern life insurance, as practiced by the best companies, embraces a wide field, and covers many contingencies. It is money saved for the aged, as well as money provided for the families of those who die prematurely.

Modesty of True Greatness.

Abou Ben Adhem had just found out that his name led all the rest. "Still," he observed, with a modesty as rare as it was charming, "the season is young yet. I've made a few lucky hits, it's true, but just as likely as not I shall be at the bottom of the percentage column in batting before the season ends." Smilingly accepting the bouquet of cut flowers sent to him by an admirer in the grandstand, he steepped up to the plate, struck out, dodged a lemon thrown at him by a disgusted bleacherite, and went and took his seat on the bench.

Bobby's Viewpoint.

The theater was brilliant with colored lights and overflowing with a gay commencement throng. The stage was crowded with a class of 200 boys and their teachers. Among the graduates was John, the big brother of little Bobby, who was surveying the scene with bulging eyes. He snuggled up to his father and in a stage whisper asked:

"Papa, isn't it nice that so many people came to John's commencement?"

Not Comfortable.

"I'm going off into the mountains this summer and get close to the heart of nature," said the dreamy girl.

"I once went off into the mountains to get close to the heart of nature," said the matter-of-fact man. "I sought the woods and lay down close to her throbbing bosom. But I found she was full of red bugs and other penetrating insects. So I arose and gloomily sought the artificial city."

MEAT OR CEREALS.

A Question of Interest to All Careful Persons.

Arguments on food are interesting. Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption of partly cooked, starchy oats and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing gas, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on peritonitis and appendicitis.

Starchy food is absolutely essential to the human body. Its best form is shown in the food "Grape-Nuts," where the starch is changed into a form of sugar during the process of its manufacture. In this way, the required food is presented to the system in a pre-digested form and is immediately made into blood and tissue, without taxing the digestive organs.

A remarkable result in nourishment is obtained; the person using Grape-Nuts gains quickly in physical and mental strength. Why in mental? Because the food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained from the grains, and this unites with the albumen of all food and the combination is what nature uses to rebuild worn out cells in the brain. This is a scientific fact that can be easily proven by ten day's use of Grape-Nuts. "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

HANDY WAGON TOOL BOX.

Keep the Implements Handy Which May Be Needed for Breakdown.

At this season of the year the farmers are getting busy in the fields and where a breakdown occurs, especially if the farms are large, a great deal of time is lost in going for repairs. There are always apt to be unforeseen accidents which are more or less costly, and a simple device of this sort may prove helpful to many of our readers. Those who are working on the roads or are doing any amount of hauling, as well as farmers working in the field, should provide themselves with a set of tools which would come into play in case of an accident. By experience we have found that accidents generally happen in the worst possible place, where it is difficult to help ourselves. Sometimes the losing of a nut or bolt may be the means of throwing out a half day's work, rendering it impossible to continue until the damage has been repaired. While a great many of our farmers may think it is unnecessary and that it is always best to have everything snug and shipshape before going to the field or setting out on a journey, accidents will happen, no matter how much care is taken.

A wagon box such as is described here, says The Farmer, will frequently come into use and be the means of saving a considerable outlay that would otherwise be necessary for repairs. This box can be made about 18 inches long and 16 inches wide and five or six inches deep. It should be provided with several compartments for nuts and bolts of various sizes. It is large enough to contain such things as an extra hame strap, wrench, some staples, bolts, nuts, screws, screwdriver, hammer, cold chisel, wood chisel, punch, pincers, hoofknife, copper rivets, some open links, hatchet, a few wrought nails and such other things as experience may prove to be convenient to have. The shape of the box is shown in the illustration. The middle of the top is nailed fast, while on each side is a hinged lid, fastened with a hasp and staple for a lock, if necessary. This box can be suspended from the guide pole directly beneath the center of the wagon box by two strong leather straps with buckles. Such a box would not be in the way and would be easily accessible if anything was wanted.

SCIENCE AND FARMING.

The Wisdom of Making Nature Fight the Insect Foes.

Scientists are now realizing that the abundance of insect pests which the farmer of to-day has to battle with is due largely, if not entirely, to the upsetting of nature's laws.

Before man placed the woods and prairies under cultivation, excessive increase of any insect species was perhaps unknown, or, at most, very rare.

Nature has always provided forces which operate against each other, as it were, and with insects, as with other creatures, a balance between the numbers of different species has been maintained.

Modern methods of farming have often decreased the natural enemies of injurious insects, says Coleman's Rural World, and in other cases have afforded conditions favoring the rapid multiplication of insects not formerly present in dangerous numbers.

The practical entomologist of today, while not discounting the value of poisons and sprays as implements of war against the six-footed host, recognizes that really satisfactory control is to be brought about by a partial or total restoration of the conditions under which nature formerly prevented the different species from becoming too numerous. The entomologist accordingly studies parasitic enemies and diseases which destroy the injurious insects, and oftentimes he is enabled to encourage the parasites to such an extent that they largely or entirely control the injurious forms.

The Middle Man.

A New York report says that a great butter trust has been formed, backed by a capital of $30,000,000. The projectors declare that they are going to eliminate the middle man in the selling of butter, and that they propose to get control of practically all the butter made in the country. This butter is all to be reworked to a single grade. It will probably prove to be but one mode of the many fruitless attempts to get rid of that very necessary worker, the middleman. Under the present financial arrangements for doing business, the middleman is a necessity.

The Berry Bushes.

Don't let the berry bushes grow all over the garden. Confine them to rows and chop off the head of every plant that comes up out of place.

His Finger Imprints.

Of Count Julius Andrassy, whose monument was recently unveiled at Buda-Pesth, the Neue Presse gives the following incident: Count Andrassy had a habit of smoothing with his hand his richly oiled hair. One day an important document had passed the Austrian council of ministers, in the contents of which Count Andrassy was interested. Shortly afterward the Austrian president of the ministry said to one of the ministers: "Count Andrassy has read the latest document." "How do you know?" "I find on it the imprint of Count Adrassy's fingers," responded the president with a laugh.

Unkind Advice.

Two Irishmen were eating their lunch, when one asked the other: "Pat, an' what be you thinking about?"

Pat replied: "Shure, Mike, I was a-thinking how I would be getting me clothes over me wings when I would get to heaven."

"You would better be thinking how you would be getting your hat over your horns when you get to the other place," answered Mike.—Ally Sloper.

Quite the Contrary.

"Borus, I haven't had time yet to read that last novel of yours. How did it end—happily?"

"No, Naggus; it ended tragically. The total sales were 17 copies."

Extravagant Luxuries of Women of Fashion

By Harriet Prescott Spofford

Great Commercial Value of the Fashionble Woman—Benefit of Wage-Earners Through Purchase of Costly Pearls and Splendid Raiment—Toilers and Business People in All Vocations Profit by Supplying Her Requirements—Believes Herself the Inspiration of Big Enterprises.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

When in the time of great Elizabeth the young wife of Lord Compton requested in her allowance the sum of £4,000 for a string of pearls, she asked for less than the grand dame of to-day thinks of spending for the same ornament. The little circlet of pearls that the young girl wears about her throat may have cost, say, only $3,000, but the somewhat larger ones, dropping just to the waist, which her mother wears, cost no less than $40,000.

To the political economist this means a profligate waste of money that would support many families. But the wearer of the pearls claims that their price is supporting many families already. There is the diver and his family, she will tell you; the maker of his boat, his ropes and all his paraphernalia; the cleanser of the shells; the polishers—all to be paid, and all with avenues behind them through which the money passes. Then there is the work of the jewelers to be satisfied, of the architects and builders of the shops in which they find themselves, of the men and the clerks who buy and sell; and after that one must reckon with the thousand and one industries pertaining to the ships which bring the finished article over seas, ramifying into countless families; to say nothing, finally, of the customs duties which the pearls yield and which assist in carrying on the work of a great government.

Of course one string of pearls is but an infinitesimal matter in the broader view; but it is the many strings that come into the commercial value of the fashionable woman; for she is by herself but a fragment of society and is of moment only by reason of her numbers. Thus she claims that these many strings and ropes of pearls are the means of sending righteous employment into wide and far paths of industry; and that while she might lock their price into a bond and shut it in a safe, conscious that it represents money in active use, yet that her string of pearls represents no less money in no less active use. And if the affair stops short with the pearls which are no longer earning, while the bond will still be at work giving her yearly revenue, to be again put into active use, then she claims, in response to such suggestion, that there are other wants than the purely material ones, and the increment of beauty in the pearls, the tints and lusters and environment, are of as much use and value in pleasuring the world as the equivalent in blankets and in beef might be.

When you see the woman of society in all her sweet bravery, a picture in soft colors and lovely raiment, whether she herself be beautiful or not, her jewels, her lace, her flowers, her shining silks, making her a vision of that beauty which is its own excuse for being, you hesitate to show her that there is any fallacy in her argument.

* * * * *

But it is not alone in the matter of her jewels that the woman of society claims commercial value; they are a trifle in the sum total, for there is not an article of her apparel or surroundings that does not merely create but stimulate trade. She knows that as she sweeps by in her grace and her splendor the onlooker is apt to think of her as an idle moth flut tering in the sunbeam and of no use in the world. But without her, she asks, where would the multitude of milliners and modistes with all their dependency of designers and couturiers and seamstresses, the weavers of delicate hosiery and underwear, the makers of fine boots, fine gloves, fine everything, the wholesale people, the middlemen, the retailers? The silkworm spins for her, she thinks; for her the gem is delved from the mine; for her the trapper sets his snares in the snow; for her the lacemaker swings her bobbins and sets her wizard needle; for her China sends her crepes and India her muslins and France her velvets; for her ships cross the sea and caravans the deserts and railways the continents, the whole world tributary to her desires; and if Tennyson's dream of airships were to come true, "pilots of the purple twilight dropping down with costly bales," the costly bales would be for her.

In her home she further claims, the decorator finds his affairs, after builders and their people have had their percentages; the painter hangs his pictures on her walls, the sculptor brings her his marbles and his bronzes, Europe gives her tapestries and silken draperies, the orient gives her rugs, flax fields are sown and open their blue flowers for her napery, silver and gold are wrought for her table, the workmen in the factories of Sevres and Dresden and other great establishments compete for her favor. The violets on her breast are but one bunch, the roses in her vase but a single cluster, it may be; but the across the land arise at her order, as leagues of greenhouses that stretch the palace arose at the word of the afrite, and those who find work there find it because of her.

She is sure that the shopkeepers, the girls behind the counters, the manicures, the hairdressers know her for their best friend. And it is still further her contention, that when she goes abroad the carriage maker, the harness maker, the breeder and breaker of horses and all those who serve in her stables, or in any way upon her equipage and equipment, find their account in her existence, and exist, indeed, with all their own households, because she does; and that the more dwellings she has in town or country the more people are the better off by means of it.

She will tell you, too, that she is the support of the finishing schools, for her children, with their teachers of science and art and languages and manners, and that even the toys of these curled darlings of fortune give food and clothing to whole companies of folk in Swiss valleys, in French workshops and in the hidden places of our own cities. And whether enough is paid for any of these possessions of hers, whether wages should be higher and costs lower, is a question she demurs as something altogether on one side of the value to society of the society woman.

And not only to the toilers, to hard labor, does she insist that she is a chief source of income, but that she is of financial importance from another point of view. She contends that the great opera, the symphony, in which the musician has scaled the strains of heaven, is heard by those of lesser means only by reason of her and her numbers; that she affords a theme to the novelist and buys his book; to the playwright, and is his patron, and that the newspaper which has the best record of her daily doings has the best circulation and in consequence is able, through its larger receipts, to give the latest intelligence and the fullest reading—for to most other women this successful one, so called, is an object of interest, and they follow her movements as they do those of a heroine of romance.

That the fashionable woman carries on and endows various great benevolences she does not mention as showing her value, since she does not do such things because she is a fashionable woman, but because she has the purse of one; but, nevertheless, she holds that the entertainments which she organizes in "sweet charity's" name, require services which spread money broadcast, and if she does not spend her days among the poor and her income in gifts to them, she has learned from the political economist himself that the wages which are paid for her comforts and pleasures are more beneficial in the receipt than any charity. Whether or not she leads the life that is best for herself, in so far as it has no other aim than enjoyment of the passing hour or the obtaining of social supremacy, it is a life that she believes good for myriad others, and if she loses her soul in social frivolity, losing it, others find their advantage. It may be, it doubtless is, a poor and vicious state of society that makes her life possible, but society being as it is the fashionable woman looks upon herself as an unmistakable benefactress.

The bonnet rouge at work upon the streets, who sees the carriage or automobile of the fine lady roll by and hurls a curse after it, does not realize anything of this claim of hers or bethinks himself that the wear and tear of her wheels gives him work to do and bread to eat. The tired pedestrian who looks after her with envy, the poor woman who draws her skirts closer from the dust of her movement, do not consider that the fashionable woman has nothing on or about her which does not represent work done and wages paid and their share of comfort to those receiving them. But the fashionable woman herself, feeling all she claims in her justification to be true, declares that be she even so much a butterfly flitting from pleasure to pleasure, she is none the less a factor in the business of the world and a distinct addition to its wealth, and, with her financial importance hardly second to that of the wheat farmer or the ironmonger, she drags commerce in her train.

* * * * *

It is not to be expected that she should take the political economist's view of herself and her expenditure. He may call her a luxury; she believes that she is a necessity. He may compare her to the incubus of a standing army, whose sole excuse is that under the safety it guarantees enterprises can be undertaken and prospered. She will answer that the desire on the part of her husband or father to give her all that becomes her arouses those energies that make enterprise, business, success and big fortunes. And although one may bitterly deprecate that condition of society which diverts so much capital and labor from that different order of production which shall cheapen food and clothing and make complete the birthright of all, yet while society is what it is, with all the selfish abuses of altruism, her commerical value is a feature of first importance.

CROP CONDITIONS IN WESTERN CANADA

Lateness of Spring Overcome by Excellent Growing Summer Season.

Once more the farmers of Western Canada rest at ease and grow rich while they slumber. Their season of anxiety is over. For a time it looked as though a backward season was for once going to prevent the western country from maintaining its preeminent position as leader of the grain growing countries of the world. The unusual lateness of the spring coupled with the rapid advance in the price of food-stuffs gave the pessimists some reason for their gloomy forebodings, and among even the optimistic Westerners imbued as they usually are with a spirit of buoyancy and hope, there commenced to glimmer a fear that perhaps this year their sanguine expectations were not to be realized. On May day when a large proportion of wheat had usually been sown there was this year very little seeding done. Finally, however, winter which had tarried so late in the lap of spring in all parts of the Continent vanished before the vertical rays of the sun, and the hurry and bustle of spring work commenced on the western prairies.

By the 20th of May 85% of the spring wheat was sown and the fall wheat in the districts devoted to its cultivation was covering the fields with a mantle of green. Wheat sowing finished on May 30 and by June 10 the coarser grains were also in the ground. The heavy snowfall during the winter left the ground in excellent shape when once seeding operations commenced and from the time weather conditions permitted the commencement of work until planting was completed, the farmers were a busy class. The area in wheat is not much larger than last year, but oats, barley and flax are much in excess of past records, the farmers deeming it wiser on account of the lateness of the season to put in a heavier proportion of the coarser grains. From the most reliable reports to hand it appears that the acreage as compared with 1906 will show an increase of 12% in oats, 19% in barley and 13% in flax.

Around Akotoks, High River, Nanton, Claresholm and other winter wheat centers, if the present weather conditions continue, the winter wheat will be in head by the middle of July.

The backward weather in the early part of May allowed the newly sown grain to get a firm root in the ground, and now with an abundance of moisture and warm weather the growth is remarkable. All danger of injury from droughts is practically over as the green crop covers the ground retaining the moisture required for its growth and preventing the too rapid evaporation which might otherwise take place.

Crops in Western Canada mature in one hundred days of good weather, and as the weather conditions have been ideal since seeding, and with spring wheat now from 14 to 18 inches above the ground, a full average crop is confidently expected.

In addition to the cheering prospects of this year's yield the farmers are to be congratulated on the fact that they still have in their possession five million bushels of wheat from last year's crop which they are now disposing of at high prices.

The splendid yield of 90,000,000 bushels of wheat raised in 1906 in the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, together with the almost certain assurance that this year will see a considerable increase, is, as in the past, calling the attention of the world of the "Last Best West," and thousands from the United States and the agricultural districts of Europe are each month securing free grant lands or purchasing farms in the land which has proved itself peerless among the grain growing countries of the world.

Courage.

Three tired citizens—a lawyer, a doctor and a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke:

"I know what you fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't."

People Tell Each Other About Good Things.

Twelve years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merits of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by grateful persons, it is indispensable to millions. It is cleanly, wholesome, healing and antiseptic and gives rest and comfort to tired aching feet.

It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit otherwise you would never be offered a substitute for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original foot powder. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, and see that you get it.

Generous Mr. Kraft.

"Mr. Kraft, the merchant," said the college president, "has offered to donate $5,000 for a new building to be known as 'Kraft hall.'"

"But," said the dean of the faculty, "$5,000 won't pay for the building we want."

"Oh! no. You see, Mr. Kraft's generous offer is contingent upon our securing donations of $10,000 each from ten other public-spirited citizens."—Philadelphia Press.

PROUD IN HER POVERTY.

Young Woman's Brave Answer to Insulting Landlord.

Frank P. Sargent, the United States commissioner of immigration, said one day in Washington:

"There is fine stuff in some of these poor people who come to uor shores. I heard recently of a young Swedish woman. Brave, witty and honorable, she could bring splendid young Americans into the world. A short time after she arrived among us, her husband got out of work. Naturally, then, the rent fell behind. The landlord called for it one day in her husband's absence. He listened to the young woman's tale of misfortune, regarding the while her yellow hair, her clear blue eyes, her red mouth and white teeth. Suddenly, bending toward her, he said:

Give us a kiss!'

"She drew back, and her blue eyes, as cold as ice, dwelt on him disdainfully.

"'No,' she said, 'my husband and I may be too poor to pay our rent, but we are not so poor that we can't do our own kissing.'"

AWFUL EFFECT OF ECZEMA.

Covered with Yellow Sores—Grew Worse—Parents Discouraged—Cuticura Drove Sores Away.

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor called it. We took her to three doctors but by this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Doctor No. 3 said that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone. We were nearly discouraged, but I thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., Aug. 17, 1906.

Two Advertising Truths.

A soap millionaire and an actor manager were talking business.

"I," said the actor manager, "have discontinued the use of posters. My announcements appear in the newspapers exclusively. I have learned that those who don't read the papers don't go to the theater."

"You are wise," said the soap millionaire. "And I do like you. Long since I discarded every form of advertisement save that of the press, finding that they who didn't read a daily paper had no use for soap."

Very Handy.

"Among the people who greeted the President upon his arrival at Oyster Bay," says an exchange, "none attracted so much attention as a woman who carried two children in her arms and led another by the hand:" It strikes us that a capable woman like that would attract attention anywhere.—Washington Post.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

Health Is the First Essential Toward Making a Woman Attractive.

MISS HULDA KUGHLER MISS ELIZABETH WYNN

There is a beauty and attractiveness in health which is far greater than mere regularity of feature.

A sickly, irritable, and complaining woman always carries a cloud of depression with her; she is not only unhappy herself but is a damper to all joy and happiness when with her family and friends.

It is the bright, healthy, vivacious woman who always charms and carries sunshine wherever she goes.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging and that everything tires her; if her feminine system fails to perform its allotted duties, there is nervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, backache, headache, bearing-down pains, and irregularities, causing constant misery and melancholia, she should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs will dispel all these troubles. By correcting the cause of the trouble it cures where other treatment may have failed.

Miss Elizabeth Wynn, of No. 205 8th Avenue, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For months I suffered with dreadful headaches, pain in the back and severe hemorrhages. I was weak and out of sorts all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me when all other medicine had failed. It seemed to be just what I needed and quickly restored my health."

Miss Hulda Kughler, of No. 25, West 15th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For months I was ill with an internal trouble. I suffered terrible agony, was nervous, irritable, and sick all the time. I took different medicines without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and within six months I was completely restored to health and I want to recommend it to every suffering woman."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular functions, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacements, inflammation or ulceration, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Europe's Extinct Aurochs.

Professor A. Martens of Magdeburg has reviewed all the early literature and documents relating to the famous wild ox of Europe, the aurochs, or urus, and shows that it was not identy, "$5,000 won't pay for the buildanimal also lived in Europe in the time of the aurochs. It is on record that a herd of thirty aurochses were living in Poland in 1564. In 1627 a few half-domesticated aurochses were still in existence, but the race has since become extinct. The typical color of the aurochs was black, but there was a gray variety in Poland and a red one in Germany.

"We never repent of eating too litte," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during the hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach rs much as possible by the use of a little Kodol. For Indigestion and Dyspepsia. which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

PAIN
Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.
If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.
Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.
We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend
